

ABSTRACT

A system and method for automated servlet configuration. In a servlet development environment, an automated servlet configuration file generation method can include querying a subject servlet for associated servlet configuration data through the servlet development environment. Subsequently, the servlet configuration data can be incorporated in a servlet configuration file. In consequence, the servlet configuration file can be processed in an application server to explicitly configure the subject servlet.